

Roll up, roll up! VI3.Blueprint ...

---

Steve Chambers 213 posts since

May 31, 2008

Hello all, I have just started a project to write up a VI3 blueprint - building a VI3 solution in 180 days.

;

- Check out the VI3.Blueprint Project
- Go straight to the VI3.Blueprint Directory

;

I am seeking reviewers and co-authors to help over the next two months. This is due to complete at end of March. What's required:

;

- Reviewer - a commitment to read and feedback on specific documents, as many or as few as you can fit into your schedule. Also set some of the quality criteria for each document. I have some rewards in mind if you want to contact me and find out.

;

- Co-author - as it says on the tin, a commitment to write and see-through-to-publishing, as many or as few as you can fit into your schedule. Again I have some rewards in mind, so contact me to find out.

It goes without saying that not only will this be interesting work, it will also be high profile as your name gets known inside VMware and to everyone outside via the portal. We get about 70,000 hits a month so far and it is rising exponentially at the moment as we approach content critical mass. This is without promotion via the main VMTN channel which has over 600,000 users so you can imagine the pageviews this stuff will get.

;

If you are interested in either role, please send me a private message or email. If you have questions about the above, feel free to post them in this thread because if you're thinking it then someone else probably is too.

Roll up, roll up! VI3.Blueprint ...

;

Cheers

Steve

;

;

;

;

;

;

Message was edited by: Steve Chambers, to point at new Directory + update hits (from 40,000 to 70,000!)

Tags: deployment, collaboration, blueprint, review, research, author